WAS BURNED TO DEATH.

Coal Oil Lamp Causes a Shocking Tragedy at Fairview.

ALONE IN HER HOME.

Neighbors Who Ran to Her Aid Found Body in the Throes of Death.

Mrs. Lou Quisenberry, a widow living in the town of Fairview, was burned to death in a shocking manner Thursday evening. Neighbors who saw the glare of flames in her room and ran to her rescue found the remains of a broken oil lamp on the hearth and Mrs. Quisenberry sitting on the side of the bed in a dying condition. Her clothing had all been burned off and she was unconscious and lived but a few minutes. She fell over and expired without speaking.

It is probable that Mrs. Quisenberry dropped the lighted lamp which was broken and that her clothing was set on fire and she was burned to death, inhaling the flames. She could not even scream for help. In her fright she ran to the bed, where she was found.

She was about 60 years of age and leaves three children, Ed, and Harry Quisenberry (who lives in California), and Mrs. Omar Barksdale. She was a member of the Presbyterian church. Her funeral services were held yesterday, and the burial took place at the Carroll burying ground. Mrs. Quisenberry was a Miss Carroll before her marriage.

WILLIAM TWYMAN

Died in Oklahoma Last Sunday Morning.

Mr. James A. Twyman, of this city, received a letter yesterday advising him of the death of his brother, Mr. Wm. W. Twyman, last Sunday morning, in his 74th year.

Mr. Twyman left here about twenty years ago and located in New Mexico, where he resided until a short time since. He had been in poor health for some time, but seemed to be much better several weeks before his death. He was found dead in his bed Sunday morning. He leaves his wife, four daughters and one son.

OWEN CLARK'S SLAYER

Goes Free at Paducah After a Long Trial.

The Paducah News-Democrat says:

"After considering the evidence in the case of Albert Winfrey, accused of the murder of Owen Clark, for 27 hours the jury returned a verdict of not guilty at 11 o'clock Wednesday.

When the verdict was read Winfrey gave a shout of exultation and his sister, who sat beside him, allowed tears of joy to course down her cheeks.

Clark formerly lived in Hopkinsville and was buried here. He was a brother of Tom C. Clark, the stock dealer. A former citizen of this county, C. W. Meacham, was on the jury that acquitted Winfrey.

FINE FARM SOLD.

Geo. Wills Sells His Track to W. H. Butler.

Mr. Geo. W. Wills, on yesterday sold his fine farm of 350 acres on the Clarksville pike, six miles south of the city, to Mr. W. H. Butler, of Bainbridge. The price paid was $35 an acre. Possession will be given about Oct. 1. Mr. Wills has not decided in what business he will engage.

Tabernacle Must ...Not Be Sold.

The Fiscal Court considered the proposition of the managers to sell the Union Tabernacle for use as an armory.

The court adjourned Wednesday afternoon and looked at the property, but declined to purchase. The price named was $2,500, the managers reserving the right to use the building for religious purposes. The debt which has hung over the property for years is $2,500.

The building and grounds are considered worth more than double the amount of the debt. In fact we are told that they cost $6,000. Had the Fiscal Court secured the property it would certainly have made a big scoop.

Aside from the question as to whether the managers have a legal right to dispose of the property, the idea with many of the people who have contributed time and money to a fund for the grounds or buildings, or both, is not popular.

Under the original purchase of the ground and the erection of the tabernacle it was specifically understood that each church of the city was to elect a manager the first of every year. This matter has been neglected for several years and the managers have continued in office.

They have served long, and doubtless have done the best they could, but we know that some of them would be glad to be relieved of the responsibility and the burden they have so long endured by having somebody to step in and take their places.

Some think that it would be wise to select an entirely new board. We are not inclined to criticize, but the new board might put new life into the management of the building, which has been of an incalculable benefit to the city, and they possibly might devise means to pay off the debt, which has so long hung like an incubus over those who are interested in the spiritual and moral life of the community. It is now up to the members of the churches to do something in this direction, and every pastor and the officers of the churches should seriously consider the matter of paying off the debt at an early date and hold the building forever for the uses for which it was built. It can be done and should be done. The time has arrived for action.

Had the Fiscal Court decided to purchase, we know enough to make the assertion that the sale would have met with a most vigorous protest by many who have put money into the building, and can also say that a mass meeting was talked about when the news gained circulation that negotiations were going on between the managers and the court.

Now that the county is no longer in the market, let everyone who wants to hold the tabernacle for religious purposes, (and such other as the board in its wisdom might permit), put on their thinking caps and do what they can to lift the debt. It is true that the present board of managers are in a dilemma from which they would gladly extricate themselves for the public good, but if they can't see their way out, they are certainly entitled to the help of the people, from whom a suggestion might come that would rid the city of the trouble it is now in.

The managers have served long and well. They are no doubt more interested than the average citizen and many faithful Christians. The result of their years of labor casts no reflection on their ability to discharge the trust that has been imposed in them, but they have been up against a stone wall so long that, some of them, at least, have grown tired of gazing at it and would be glad to "take a rest."

The question of holding the tabernacle for sacred purposes is of far more importance, some think, than the completion and equipment of the Y. M. C. A. building. Be that as it may, one fact is patent: We have the completed tabernacle, and our people cannot afford to let it be sold to anybody for any purpose whatever.

We are told that the mortgagee is not forthcoming by the 15th of this month will file suit to foreclose. The present board of managers will hold a meeting in a few days to secure another loan. They ought to have no trouble in doing so, for it seems to us that either of the banks would be glad to make it. The pastors and officers of the churches could make a pro rata assessment or secure offerings to pay the interest until the debt is lifted. When you take a look backward and remember the great spiritual work that has been done—the reclaiming of men lost in sin, the swelling of the membership of every church, improvements that have been made in church buildings, enlargements now in contemplation and the erection of one of the handsomest stone houses of worship in the state, and then wake up to the fact that at least 65 per cent. of the white population of Hopkinsville are members of some church, wouldn't it be a shame to let the tabernacle go into the hands of any man, the county or a corporation for other uses than that for which men and women have often staked themselves in order to contribute something for a house that has been built for the glory of God and the salvation of men?

As a gentleman who labored faithfully to raise money to erect the building, said yesterday, it has done more for the uplifting of men and swelling the rolls of the churches than all other things.

It is a well known fact that men attend divine services at the tabernacle who never see the inside of any church. Can Hopkinsville, in its days of unprecedented success and growth, afford to let the tabernacle be sold under the hammer? We think not, and do not believe it will.

FRACTURED A LIMB.

H. C. Hester Victim of Serious Accident.

Mr. H. C. Hester, of near Pembroke, was seriously injured Monday. While hitching up a horse Mr. Hester struck the animal, causing it to start suddenly. The lines, the ends of which were lying on the ground, became wrapped around Mr. Hester's ankle, throwing him to the ground and his right leg was fractured just above the ankle.

For the Athenaeum Banquet On May 2.

The Athenaeum held an important meeting Friday night with nineteen members present. There were two excellent papers read. Dr. R. F. McDaniel, discussed "Alexander Hamilton" and Mr. T. J. Reynolds dealt with "Overcapitalization of Railroads." Both papers were carefully prepared and were discussed in the usual manner. The banquet committee reported the following gentlemen on the program for the banquet and open session on May 2: J. W. Downer, J. T. Hanbery, H. C. Smith, H. D. Smith, Ira L. Smith and T. C. Underwood.

The annual election of officers was held and the following elected. Chas. M. Meacham, president, H. Clay Smith, vice president, Frank Rives, secretary.

END COMES TO JOHN W. PAYNE

Was Elected County Attorney Twenty-One Years Ago.

HIS FUNERAL TODAY.

Was a Graduate of Lebanon, Law School—Leaves No Family

Mr. John W. Payne died yesterday, shortly after noon after a protracted illness. His condition had been critical for a week or more.

He was a son of the late Newton Payne and was the oldest of a family of one son and four daughters. He was born in this city about 50 years ago and received a liberal education and graduated from the Lebanon law school in 1879. He formed a partnership with James Breathitt and later with R. W. Henry which firm continued until Mr. Payne was elected county attorney in 1886, defeating Harry Ferguson, the Republican nominee, by 107 votes, he being one of the few Democrats on the ticket to be elected. Mr. Payne's service in this office was creditable in every way. When he retired from office he resumed the practice of law, and was for some years connected with the New Era. For several years he had been broken in health and out of active practice in his profession.

In early life he was a member of the Baptist church. His funeral will take place to-day from the residence of Mr. F. L. Waller. Elder H. D. Smith, of the Christian church, will be assisted by Rev. Geo. C. Abbott, of the Episcopal church.

His near relatives surviving him are Mrs. J. W. Warfield, Mrs. Thos. W. Long, Miss Ophelia Payne and Mrs. A. G. Bell, of Louisville, and a half sister, Mrs. F. L. Waller.

The interment will be in Riverside Cemetery.

HAT ELL-DRESSED WOMEN EAR

"AT HOME" GOWNS

Even one less trained in the habit of observing could see at a glance that the dress which bears a short waisted bodice is the favorite of the moment, and that it looks its best made of some flowered chiffon or lace mounted over gauze or silver tissue or chiffon of contrasting shades.

An excellent example which we saw the other day was of white elaborately flowered, bordered with black and mounted over rose pink, the short bodice bearing a lace bertha tied with black velvet ribbons, the long narrow skirt being elaborately frilled with shades of the pink chiffon just visible below the black border. The exceptions to the rule of the diaphanous dresses of this short-waisted description were mostly velvet, tightly fitting with plain skirts and a décolletage bordered with a few folds of tulle. I saw no less than three frocks effect of contour makes for grace in combination with the long coats or short-waisted bodices and narrow long skirts.

Slender and loose and straight and easy; these are the points which characterize the most up-to-date gowns, and no bad points either, since undoubtedly while making for elegance they press home the plea of comfort. But, and there is always a but, they insist for their best achievement upon the help of the finest materials. Cloth dresses if unlined, must be made of the best cloth, loose bodices if trimmed with lace or embroidery call aloud for fine lace and good embroidery, and always such gowns have their best triumphs with the lace or trimming of whatever kind, in white or cream color; while the under-sleeves should match these light decorations at the neck, and such equipments must be absolutely fresh to be at all charming.

The same drawback must be written down to the credit of the hats, their beaver or velvet foundation must be fine, and their feathers can only droop in the right way if they are of superlative quality. Mind, I am not advocating these extravagances, because I am always anxious to keep clear of the accusation of prodigality, which I know pursues me; I am merely mentioning that these things are, and how they must be if they are to achieve the results designed for them by their pioneers.

As to the gowns shown in our large illustration in No. 1 you will see an example of the Princess dress and the wide square sleeves which are ubiquitous, these being made of thick Irish lace together with the belt across the front, while above peeps a narrow vest of velvet, and above again a tight-fitting yoke and collar-band of fine lace. As a costume for the immediate occasion I would commend it in mulberry cloth, while for the early springtime good results might be expected and arrived at in lavender blue or a deep warm shade of biscuit, which the authorities rechristen yearly, "banana," "the inner husk of the chestnut," or "almond," being assigned its proper name.

The other picture represents a dress made of that very thin nylon which hangs like chiffon and wears better, in a dull shade of green it has as sole ornament monster tucks, while round the waist is a belt of dull gold galon, the cream lace yoke being laid over gold tissue. This style is worth the attention of the home dressmaker, for it is easy to produce, and most inexpensive in its demand for those ices, which have a habit of mounting up formidable heights, and rendering the efforts of the thrifty diffident when the results desired are to be supremely successful.

A charming gown of purple cloth is shown in our single column illustration. The skirt is quite untrimmied and hangs in soft rather full folds, just up formidable heights, and round the draped bodice has soft revers of satin, caught in by little tabs and amethyst buttons, while big amethyst buttons rimmed with silver will look charming on the Parma mauve waistcoat. The chemiselette introduces the soft touch of flimsy lace which is a becoming feature of practically every gown nowadays. Just a touch of lace can also be had in the form of a little inner cuff, or ruffle, to relieve the short puffed sleeves.

New and Smart Style for Cloth Gown.

on these lines, one in black, another in brown, and a third in sapphire blue, the black being perhaps the most successful, and it was worn by a very fair young matron, in whose hair were twisted a few folds of black chiffon. And writing of hair reminds me once more to impress upon your minds that the outline of the coiffure is a mode is totally different from what it was last year. Now it is flat on the top, and pushed in soft loose waves across over the top of the ears, any decoration following the same line, setting backwards and not upwards. I know I have written this before, even as I am conscious that I shall write it again, but it is an important circumstance, and it is essential that you consider it, you who would be in the movement of fashion. Not alone in the evening time is this method of dressing the hair popular, but in the daytime, when it is crowned by hats which overshadow the brow, and bear plums drooping downwards at the back. The general

BROTHERS AT WAR ANGLO-FRENCH EXPO.

CONFLICT OVER THE OCCUPANCY OF THE THRONE OF PERSIA.

Prince Salare-Douleh Gathers an Army in Revolt Against the Newly Crowned Shah.

There is a war cloud hovering over Persia, and any moment there may break out open conflict between two princes of the royal house, the present Shah and his brother, Prince Salare-Douleh, who has instigated a revolt against the new ruler. The belligerent prince has raised an army of 60,000 well armed insurgents, composed mostly of Lora, Bakhtiari and other highlanders, and seeks to secure the independence of the southern provinces of Persia—Loristan, Arabistan and Bakhtiari.

The plan for this insurrection was engineered in 1902, when Salare-Douleh most cunningly married the daughter of Ali Ghoul Khan, of Bakhtiari, who is enjoying British protection.

In 1903 Salare-Douleh, after many secret interviews with both Turkish and British ambassadors, fed Salare-Douleh to Loristan with the object of inducing the chiefs of the Loristan tribes to join him in revolt against his father, Mozafferdin Shah. And he would certainly have succeeded in his endeavors but for the refusal of his father-in-law, Ali Ghoul Khan, and the friendly aid of one of his Armenian aides, de la Camp.

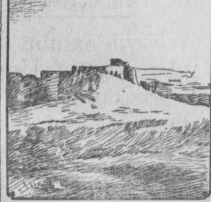

At present, however, the deep hatred he bears toward his brother and the dislike for all constitutions have driven him once more to insurrection on the frontiers of his father-in-law.

Loristan, Arabistan and Bakhtiari are the central provinces of southern Persia, and being very mountainous are so well suited to guerrilla warfare that until now no army has ever succeeded in penetrating these and holding the inhabitants in subjugation.

Salare-Douleh is a tyrant in the full meaning of the word. He often orders the beheading of men accused of the slightest offenses merely to keep in terror those who surround him. And for his cruelties he is the most hated man in Persia. Any claims he may put forward for his rights to the throne will not be tolerated by Persia's people. He is extremely avaricious and greedy, and often slays rich friends and even servants to appropriate their riches. One case was that of his secretary, Hadji Ashraf, who he beheaded at Zandjan in 1900, and took his wealth. In this way, also, he treated two of his rich servants in Arabistan.

To give an illustration of his cruelties I can say this, that he often whips his wives as punishment for imaginary wrongs. In short, this impudent prince, who is surrounded by such sly advisers as Nasir-Nezam and Yemine-Nezam, and who regards the world merely as a pledge for his own existence, has sown the seeds of a civil war which threatens disaster to the welfare of Persia.

Had it not been for the internal strife created by parliament and the difficult revolutions, the mutiny of Salare-Douleh could be quelled easily. But now Mohammed Ali Shah has neither organized army nor financial aid, and most important of all, his autocratic powers are at present very limited by the constitution extorted from him on February 8.

The present Shah, confronted with such threatening and serious events, is quite helpless. At last England in the name of international law and the pacification of southern Persia and Russia for the preservation of order in northern Persia will be obliged to interfere in the internal affairs of Persia, and from that day the fate of Persia will be sealed.

The outcome of this armed intervention will be either the fall and division of the country between two rival countries, which does not seem to me probable, or government by joint control.

Wealthy English Duke.

The young duke of Westminster is the ground landlord for miles and miles of houses—the whole of South Belgrave, a fashionable district of London—and for each he receives a shilling a year peppercorn rent until the lease falls in. Each year fresh leases fall into his hands, and at the end of 30 years the whole of the property, which is now worth many millions, will be his entirely.

Higher Mathematics.

A scientist has figured that 2,000 microbes can stand on the head of a pin. This brilliant mathematician might now find out how many weeks' waiting a woman can do to support the family while her husband is calculating the exact amount of standing room required by a germ.

PLANS NOW MAKING FOR GREAT INDUSTRIAL SHOW.

Plans for the Grounds and Buildings Which Are to Be the Most Magnificent Ever Built for an Exposition.

The Franco-British exposition of 1908 is in the first stages of construction and in a year's time London will have the largest exhibition that has ever been held in Great Britain. It is to take up 140 acres of ground at Shepherd's Bush. Though essentially an industrial exhibition, it will of course have other features, and we are interested in particular that the many phases of art will be prominent. For instance, there is the Indian Court and Lake which will confront visitors who enter by the principal entrance. This is to be an example of Indian architecture, brilliant in color and fantastic in shape. There will be two terraces running completely round the lake, a bridge across it, and piers jutting out from the sides into the water. At the far end of the lake, which will be trafficked by many boats, there is Congress Hall. Here meetings of all kinds will be held, and scientific and other societies invited to use it for conferences. At the back of Congress Hall there is to be a transparent cascade, lighted underneath and in front with colored lamps, which will play with picturesque effect at night. The designing of the buildings of which the exhibition committee has control is in the hands of Mr. Belcher, a former president of the Royal Society of British Architects, and Mr. Townley, who designed the Architectural Court of Explanade des Invalides of the Paris exposition. There is to be a Fine Arts palace, in which a unique collection of British and French paintings, under the superintendence of Sir Isidore Spielmann, will be exhibited; an Applied Arts palace, an Ancient Art palace, and a building for decorative art. Finally, we may expect a good deal in original architecture from the various French and English towns or colonies which will house their wares of their own construction.

View of Entrance to and Part of Stadium Where Olympic Sports Will Be Held.

Our picture depicts a portion of the stadium for sports of every description. The arrangements here are in the hands of the British Olympic association, and as there are to be a cinder path, a motor-race track, a cycle track, a trotting-track—each separate swimming bath and a large area of turf in the center, a tremendous programme will be possible.

Though the exhibition will probably run for only six months, every building will be of steel construction and fireproof. Running round the outskirts an elevated railway will carry visitors from point to point, and enable them to have an excellent view of the exhibition. Music and amusements will be almost as prominent as the serious part of the work, and will possibly be more so, and an entire cordial spirit will go a long way towards making the exhibition a success.

Leaving England Behind.

According to Sidney Lee, editor of the "National Dictionary of Biography," the American people are becoming more accurate readers and writers of English than the English themselves. German and French words will possibly be more so, and an entire cordial spirit will go a long way towards making the exhibition a success.

Never Gives Himself Away.

It is a creed of the up-to-date woman never to give herself away, says a writer. A cup of coffee may be spilled all over her delicate silk gown; she simply folds the breadths together and goes on with her her of feminine talk. "Enfant terrible" makes acoustical remarks, a rival gives some cruel stab; all is met with the same absolute immobility of countenance.

Girls as Hotel "Bellboys."

Oscar Hammerstein, manager of the Manhattan Opera house and several theaters in New York, has turned all the other boys out of his hotel offices and employed young women in their places. He says he is tired of the lateness, inefficiency and impudence of the boys, and believes the change will be a marked improvement.

Pure Blood

Is certain if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla.
This great medicine cures those eruptions, pimples and boils that appear at all seasons; cures scrofula sores, salt rheum or eczema; adapts itself equally well to, and also cures, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles; cures rheumatism and catarrh; cures nervous troubles, debility and that tired feeling.

Sarsaparilla—For those who prefer medicine in tablet form, Hood's Sarsaparilla is now put up in choicest tablets called Sarsapills, as well as in the usual liquid form. Sarsapills have identically the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy—no loss by evaporation, leakage, or leakage. Druggists or promptly by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

GUARANTEED under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906. No. 324.

Mrs. C. K. Tyler, Burlington, Vt. says: "The more of this medicine I use, the more I am convinced it will do me good. I have used it down; blood poor and thin; no strength, little sleep. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives appetite, natural sleep, perfect health, strength to do all my work."

Occasionally, even in Hopkinsville, there is a business failure, but we cannot now recall a single failure of a merchant who advertised his goods.
It is the merchant who does not advertise whose business does not succeed.

A pretty story comes from Kokomo, Ind., that reads like a novel.
J. Earl Wiles, a rich young fellow from Findlay, O., went to Kokomo, sought work as a common laborer, worked his way up from porter in a saloon to contractor for digging ditches, and won and wedded Lillian Barnett for love alone. Not until after they were married did the bride learn that Wiles will inherit $200,000 on July 21, when he becomes of age.

Republicans seem to have made gains all over the country. They elected Busse mayor of Chicago by 13,000 votes and also carried Springfield and Quincy, Ill. The Michigan majority was about 75,000. Montana showed many gains in city elections.
St. Louis remains Democratic, re-electing Rolla Wells mayor. In Hot Springs the "Fusion Reform" ticket won. A Republican mayor was elected in Kansas city, by 1,200 majority.

A WISE FISCAL COURT.

County Attorney John C. Duffy is urging the fiscal court to extend the turnpike system adopted in 1901 and build a general system of free turnpikes, limited only by the taxing ability of the county. The court by the vote taken was authorized to issue bonds and buy up the then existing turnpikes and to build such other roads as it saw fit from time to time, issuing bonds for the purpose. All of the turnpikes were at once made free and it has been the policy to build a few miles of new road every year. Mr. Duffy's plan is to build new roads into all parts of the county until the system practically covers the whole county.

Under the authority already vested, subject to constitutional limitations, the fiscal court can issue new bonds to the extent of $115,000. It is proposed to make gradual issues as the roads can be built. For instance, if a contract is let for ten miles of new road, bonds could be issued to pay for it on completion.

The condition of the roads has been so bad in some parts of the county, where the turnpikes do not extend, that the citizens are coming forward with propositions to bear about one-third of the expense of building turnpikes on their roads.
It would be a wise policy for the fiscal court to accept all such propositions, even to the extent of $100,- 000, and give Christian county the best road system in the state. The interest of $4,000 or $5,000 on the bonds could be easily paid out of the present levy.

The question has been made a special order for April 16, when the court will give a hearing to all who have propositions to make.

The disposition of the court is to make a bond issue at once to start this good work, though it would necessarily be several years before all of the new pikes could be built.
The Kentuckian is strongly in favor of the action proposed. Our real prosperity dates from the time at the turnpikes were freed and the more good roads we have the better.

A MAYOR IN OKLAHOMA

Clarksville, Tenn., April 3—A telegram from Oklahoma City announces that Henry M. Scales, formerly a member of the Clarke-ville bar, has been elected Mayor of that city on the Democratic ticket in a Republican town. Mr. Scales went to Oklahoma City some years ago, and has taken rank as one of the most capable and brilliant of its citizens.

Court has borrowed $10,000 from the First National Bank for seven months, by which time the 1907 revenue will be in. The rate is five per cent.

Webster County Woman
Ends Troubles by Suicide

Despairing of securing her freedom and that of her two brothers confined because of her act, Mrs. Emma Roach, of Webster County, former inmate of the State penitentiary, suicided Tuesday with carbolic acid accused in the hospital of the institution.

Mrs. Roach was sent up fifteen months ago for twenty-one years for the killing of G. Teague, formerly her husband, Robert and Richard Crenshaw, her brothers, were convicted of complicity in the killing and were given prison terms.

The killing of Teague grew out of a quarrel over the custody of the children. Following a divorce from Teague the woman married Charles Roach, of Homer, Ill., and went to that place to reside. The killing occurred at Dixon, as she was leaving home to go to her new residence.
Though she had been given the custody of the children, Teague resisted their being taken away. The killing occurred at the railroad track.

Idler Arrested.

Frank Edwards, a negro, was arrested Thursday morning as a loiterer about town. It was also intimated that he had drawn a knife on a negro woman. In order to get rid of the negro he was given the chance of serving the city by getting out of town. He agreed to do so, but Thursday about dark he was re-arrested and spent the night in the lockup.

REST MADE EASY

There Will Be Less Sleeplessness When Hopkinsville People Learn This.

Can't rest at night with a bad back, a lame, a weak or an aching one. Doan's Kidney Pills are for bad backs.

They cure every form of Kidney ills, from common backache to diabetes.

They are endorsed by Hopkinsville people.

James A. Twyman, brick mason, 1230 S. Virginia St., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "Disorders of the kidneys brought in my case so sharp and continued succession of pains and aches through my back that I could not rest comfortably at night and arose in the morning lame and sore. I was tired and worn out from morning to night, the kidney secretions were irregular, high colored, scalding and deposited a heavy sediment if allowed to stand? I had no energy left and felt generally run down. I was feeling worse than usual when my attention was attracted to an advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I got a box at L. A. Johnson's drug store and began using them. In a few days I noticed that the secretion had assumed a natural appearance and pain and aching had directly been relieved. By the time I had completed the box there was a wonderful change in my condition. I am glad to state that I am practically cured and Doan's Kidney Pills will be my friend for life."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Opening.

J. M. Adams, of Church Hill, has his grand Millinery Opening today. It will continue the coming week. All the latest styles are on display, and no lady should fail to see them.

Loud - In - Praise !

THERE must be SOMETHING to substantiate the thousands of compliments so kindly handed us by the swarming mass of humanity which has packed our store since our opening display began. Such expressions as "Grand!" "Gorgeous!" "A rare treat!" "The most beautiful millinery I ever saw!" etc., coincide with that which we were conceited enough to believe. But we don't allow this to "turn our heads;" it has simply inspired us to try all the harder to accomplish even better results. We are thankful to you all for encouragement. Now, if you enjoyed this treat, come again and again, and if you missed it, don't allow to pass the opportunity of inspecting the Grandest Millinery Ever Shown in Hopkinsville.

Mediterranean Fowls.

NEXT IN popularity to the American breeds are the Leghorns, White and Brown Leghorns, both single and rose comb, have become most popular throughout the country. We presume that there are more White Leghorns kept for egg-production than any other one breed of fowls. Following these are the Brown Leghorns, and at the present time the Buff Leghorns and the Anconas are having considerable attention. Scarcely any one familiar with poultry, but who is not well acquainted with the Leghorn family.
The Anconas are Leghorns that have a broken black and white plumage, the same as have the Houdans.
They are the new variety of the Mediterranean family, and in some quarters are having considerable attention.

Some few breeders are making a specialty of the Buff Leghorn for producing market eggs. A number of poultrymen produce the Buff Leghorns as a fancier's fowl. All of the varieties of Leghorns, the White, the Brown, the Buff, the Black, the Silver Duck-wing, and the Ancona are fostered and kept to the very highest degree of shape and color for exhibition purposes. Fortunes have been made in growing these as fancy poultry. This is perhaps more easily done than with other breeds from the fact that there is a ready sale for all the Leghorns that are produced. When the best have been selected for exhibition purposes, the balance are used for producing eggs for the market.

The white shell eggs usually bring the highest price of any eggs that are sold into the market, especially during the winter months when there is such a demand for fresh-laid eggs. There are many points of excellence in the Leghorn that must have special attention for exhibition purposes.

The most desirable of these is the beautiful head, comb, and ear-lobes.
The ear lobes of all the Mediterranean family must be of pure enameled white. The combs must be fine in texture beautiful in color and nicely shaped. There is a peculiar shape to the head and comb of the Leghorn that is most attractive when of the best quality. However, when ragged or rough in appearance, it detracts very much from the specimen. Following these head points come the shape of body and the carriage of tail; the squirrel tail is most undesirable, while a slight downward inflection of carriage of the tail is becoming quite popular. In addition to this, the white Leghorn must have the rich color of the Black Red Game fowl, with yellow shanks and beak. The Buff Leghorns must be as rich and true in color as are any of the Buff fowls. The Ancona is a beautiful combination of broken white and black. The Black Leghorn has a rich, glossy black color, the Silver Duckwing is colored and marked the same as are the Duck-wing Games and in addition to these, there are at times seen Leghorns having the same color and marking as have the Pyle Games.—Feather.

Words With the Cook

A man entered a well-known restaurant in New York the other day and beckoned to a waiter,—"Bring me," he said, "two fried eggs—one fried on one side, and one on the other." The waiter looked slightly puzzled, but answered, "Yes sir," and disappeared toward the kitchen.
Ten minutes later he returned, looking decidedly worried.

"Would you mind repeating that order, sir?" he asked.

"I want two fried eggs," said the diner, "one fried on one side and one on the other."

The waiter again disappeared in the direction of the kitchen. After a longer wait than before he returned, his clothes disheveled and his face bruised and scratched.

"I beg your pardon sir," he said,
"but would you mind having boiled eggs? I've had words with the cook."

The Indian Runner Duck.

Brief Description and History of Its Origin.—An Unrivalled All the Year Round Egg Producer.

ALL poultry keepers of the old school, both in America and in the British Islands, remember the time when the Indian Runner duck was quite unknown, and even younger men are aware that ten years ago this excellent breed of waterfowl was nothing like a popular favorite because even then it was known merely to the few, and the great majority of the poultry keepers had not the slightest conception of its unrivaled merits as a layer.
The history of its origin is somewhat obscure, but our first acquaintance with it on this side of the water was when it was brought to Scotland some twenty years ago by a sea captain trading between the British Islands and the West-Indies.
Thus it got the name of "Indian" with the affix "Runner", to denote its chief peculiarity, namely the rapidity of its movements over the ground. The Indian Runner duck is a breed of peculiarly distinctive type, possessed of a long, slender and graceful body, which has been graphically described as of the shape of a soda water bottle, sets on legs.
The neck is also long and slender and the head and bill rather large proportion to the size of the body. The carriage of the body is not very unlike that of the Pekin duck, that is to say, penguin-like, but while the Pekin is sluggish and inactive, in gait, the Indian Runner is most alert and active, and spends very little time loafing, as is the custom with ordinary ducks. For many years, in this country, the Runner was regarded as a profitable duck for the utility poultry keeper, but received little or no attention at the hands of the fancier, and consequently it was bred for utility only, without care as to its shape or plumage. Thus the different colored varieties of the breed were intermixed, but this did not spoil the distinctive shape of the duck, and when at a later stage the Indian Runner duck came in hand by the fanciers, there was no great difficulty about establishing the three distinct varieties which are now so well known. These are: (1) Fawn and White. (2) Brown and White and (3) White. The fawn and white variety is the most popular and also the handsomest, and may be thus described: Drake: Bill large, strong and wedge-shaped, very thick at the base and tapering toward the tip. Color of bill, greenish yellow.
When the bird is full grown, but yet low when a duckling. Head of a lustrous black color, shaded with bronze and having a narrow circle of white around the base of the bill.
Neck long, slender and white in feather, but without any distinct band of marking between it and the black or the fawn of the shoulders into which the white runs irregularly. Body parti-colored, white and fawn, that portion in front of the legs being chiefly fawn, and the hinder portions white, but the outlines are not by any means regular.

The back and upper parts of the wings are fawn, there being a large heart-shaped patch of this color extending from the shoulders almost to the tail.

The difference in marking between the drake and duck is but slight and consist in a variety of the shades but not in the position of the marking in those parts of the head and tail, wherein the drake is black. The fawn patches on the body are darker than in the male and are evenly penciled with fawn of a dark shade.
The duck's bill is also wedge-shaped and the color is of a dark green with a dull or leaden cast.

The Brown and White Indian Runner is not so extensively kept as is the variety above described. From a utility point of view it is quite as useful a duck, but it seems not to have taken on to the same extent as the older and handsomer variety.
The plumage of the duck is made up of white and brown, the brown being of the penciled kind similar to the plumage of the Rouen duck. The drake is of a light-gray mixed with white.

The White Indian Runner is pure white and exceedingly handsome. In shape it is similar to the other varieties.

Let us now briefly consider the Indian Runner from the point of view of the utility poultry keeper.
It is undoubtedly one of the most profitable breeds that can be found when one has an unlimited range for it or even a large field, because it is a first rate forager and is ever on the move in search of food, so that if a natural food is available this duck requires or will take very little from the hands of its owner. On the other hand it is also a useful duck to keep where space is limited and water is scarce, for in these conditions it thrives equally well, though of course it consumes more food and lays fewer eggs. It is indeed one of the few breeds that will do well without over access to a brook or pond, and for this reason it is kept by many who have not facilities for keeping ducks of other kinds. In Ireland I have observed that since the advent of the Indian Runner almost all other breeds have become practically extinct. One never sees a Pekin or an Aylesbury or a Rouen where formerly hundreds were kept, and there are but few Cayugas or East Indians. This is chiefly owing to the fact that ducks are kept here for their eggs rather than for their flesh, and consequently the Indian Runner fills the bill. No other duck can approach it as a layer and it is the rival of most breeds of hens. Its capacity for winter egg production when eggs of all kinds are so scarce and dear is perhaps its strongest point, for there are very many people who require a supply of eggs all the year around, to fill contracts with hotels, public schools, asylums, and other institutions, and when the hen fails in her duty the sprightly Indian Runner duck can equally be depended upon to step into the breach.
The eggs are of delicate flavor and white or light shelled, so that there is no great objection to them for breakfast use, and by many, who would not look at a large green shelled duck egg the egg of the Indian Runner is eaten as if it were a hen egg.

As a table bird the Indian Runner is not regarded with very great value, because of its small size, yet the flesh is juicy, tender and delicate, and the ducklings grow to a size fit for killing at a very early age. It is used by several duck raisers to cross with the Aylesbury, and it is found that at the killing age, say ten weeks, the cross bred Indian Runner-Aylesbury is not much inferior in size to the pure Aylesbury, although, of course, ultimately the latter would outstrip it in growth.

which to carry on this egg-laying contest, and he seeks the cooperation and support of all admirers and breeders of the various kinds of poultry. A prize of five hundred dollars in gold will be awarded the pen making the best record, and a series of other valuable money prizes will be awarded the best pen of each breed, and also to the greatest individual layer of each breed.

The contest will begin May 15, and close October 15, and is open to all breeders in the United States, each pen to consist of ten hens and one male bird. All interested in the should write direct to Mr.
Waring, at Norfolk, Va.—Feather.

Germany's Fight for Sea Power

ADMIRAL VON TIRPITZ.

Since Germany began the race for sea power in 1898—and it is not yet nine years ago since the race began—she has made rapid strides towards obtaining a fleet of powerful battleships that will eventually only be second in Europe to the British fleet. In the preamble to the navy act of 1900 we read that it was incumbent on Germany to have a fleet of such strength that, even for the mightiest naval power, a war with her would involve risks calculated to jeopardize its own supremacy. The fleet that Germany means to possess is nominally intended for the protection of her overseas trade and her colonies; but it is no exaggeration to add that the possession of 38 battleships will enable the German empire to have a greater say about world policy (Weltpolitik) than was contemplated under the first emperor. This fact, taken in connection with the dictum of Kaiser Wilhelm II, "Our future lies on the water," has given rise to some sinister forebodings in England, and perhaps we should not be wrong in assuming that the intended concentration of a new and powerful fleet in the North sea has shifted the center of gravity of naval strength from the Mediterranean to those waters. Since the passing of the navy act of 1900, an amendment to the same received the sanction of the reichstag in 1905; and coincident therewith the reichstag further adopted the proposal of the German admiralty entirely to abandon the building of medium-sized battleships, and to construct great battleships, equal, if not surpassing British Dreadnaughts in fighting qualities, as well as cruisers immensely superior in size and armament to those hitherto laid down in German yards.

The German navy is a new creation, but its growth up to the year 1917 will assuredly continue on the lines approved and published, provided nothing, not yet anticipated, in the shape of a further amendment should supervene to hinder it. The potential value of the contemplated German navy, concentrated as it will be in the North sea, is fully appreciated by Kaiser Wilhelm, by the secretary of state of the German imperial navy, as well as by our own naval authorities.

The intellectual author of the navy laws of 1898 and 1900, and of the amendment act of 1906 was Admiral von Tirpitz, the secretary of state of the German imperial navy office. He also defended these measures before the reichstag, and steered them through the debates with considerable skill. Born March 19, 1849, at Cuxhaven, the son of an eminent jurist who held a high judicial post in that town, with the title Ober-Landesgerichtsrath, Alfred Tirpitz became a naval cadet in 1865, and was afterwards at the naval academy from 1874-76. He subsequently devoted much attention to the torpedo branch of the service, and is responsible for modern German torpedo organization and the tactical use of torpedoes in the German navy. He was inspector of torpedo service, and was the first flotilla chief of the torpedo flotillas. Later he became chief of the staff of the naval station in the Baltic and of the supreme command of the German navy. He has made several long sea voyages, is recorded as an eminent tactician, and is the author of the rules for German naval tactics as now in use in the navy. In 1895 he was promoted to the rank of rear admiral, and became vice admiral in 1899. During 1896 and 1897 he commanded the cruiser squadron in East Asia, and was appointed secretary of state of the imperial navy office in January, 1897. In the following year he was made a minister of state, and in 1901 received the honorary rank of nobility, entitling him to the use of the prefix "Von" before his name. Admiral von Tirpitz has often been in England, where he has a good many personal friends. At the time when there was no naval attaché in Carlton terrace he was frequently sent to the German embassy on special missions. He speaks English fluently and has a good knowledge of the English character, as well as of the views and mode of life of English people, and he is well-read in English literature.

Admiral von Tirpitz has always been on the side of those who deprecate the fomenting of friction between Germany and Britain. Among the birthday honors distributed by the kaiser recently, his majesty conferred the highest Order of Chivalry of the Prussian Crown on Admiral von Tirpitz. This act of imperial and royal favor is beyond doubt intended as a further recognition of the admiral's many years' activity as a clever and capable organizer. In regard to his connection with the navy act, which is spoken of above, it should be added that Admiral von Tirpitz succeeded therein in giving practical shape to the thoughts and aims of Kaiser Wilhelm, at the same time surmounting all the very great difficulties connected with internal political conditions that confronted the development of the German fleet.

The kaiser has always shown that he attached great value to Admiral von Tirpitz's counsel, for he always found that he was capable of immediately seeing the point of a matter. As a man, the admiral has a genial and kind sailor-like nature, and he is courteous and considerate to all who work under him and come in contact with him. Although body and soul a sailor, he is very fond of riding, and has a good seat in the saddle. Despite his 57 years he does not hesitate to put his horse to any fence he thinks him capable of "negotiating."

J. L. BASHFORD.

Veteran Whaler Dead.
Capt. William H. Allen, a veteran whaler, died a few days ago near New London, Conn., aged 81. To him belonged the honor of having made the most successful voyage on record in the annals of the whaling industry. This was in 1865, when, in command of the ship Onward of New Bedford, he cruised in the Eastern, Yellow, Japan and Okhotsk seas and off the California coast. On this voyage he captured 124 whales, the catch netting 6,872 barrels of oil and 62,000 pounds of whalebone. This cargo sold for $417,000, of which Capt. Allen's share was $29,825. The voyage covered three years.

Condemned to Silence.
John B. Moran, district attorney of Boston, has been ordered by physicians to abstain absolutely from talking for an indefinite period. During the recent political campaign he strained his vocal chords badly. He smoked a great deal and that made the situation worse. Now he has been compelled to forego the society of "My Lady Nicotine" for a time, besides confining himself to whispered speech, and very little of that.

Aged Scientist Honored.
For the third time Sir Archibald Geikie has just been elected president of the Geological Society of London. Although over 70 years of age, he manages to fill many more important positions than most men would care to accept. He is a member of a great many European and American academies. He has written extensively on geological matters.

JOE MITCHELL CHAP- PLE IN PANAMA.

The National Magazine for April goes from the ten to fifteen cent class. It contains "The Truth About Panama," from the pen of the first magazine editor who had the spunk to personally visit Panama. This is the big feature of the number.

It may well be guessed that this distinction belongs to Joe Mitchell Chapple, the editor of the National Magazine, who has a way of his own of "doing things."

At the outset of this article which is illustrated with 100 handsome views showing every detail of the work being done in digging the great ditch, and which takes sixty-five pages in the National, Mr. Chapple says, his trip was undertaken on a sudden impulse in answer to a challenge given by a public official. The decision to make the trip was a sudden one and promptly executed, for he adds, "the only way to go, is to go!"

It is a great story that the National publishes, and it is one that will be read with wide-spread interest throughout the country. The National should be in the hands of every person interested in the great project of the American nation because it is the most complete and thorough account of the great enterprise, that has appeared in any magazine at any time.

Longing For Home.

(Affectionately dedicated to my brothers and sisters.)

Far away, how many years?
Far away this weary night;
Bravely keeping back the tears,
Which this missive brings to sight.
Home, dear home, do they miss me?
Home, sweet home, how memory clings, Mother, sister—none to kiss me.
None to heal life's daily stings.
Stranger in a land of strangers, Battling hard each weary day, Hopeless, oft besieged by dangers,
In the rough and thorny way.
How I long to see their faces, In that little far off home, How I miss their fond embraces,
As I struggle all alone.

Far away these weary years, Far away this mournful night, Striving to keep back the tears,
Which this letter brings to night.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now 83 years old, thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunston, of Dublin, Ga. "She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and sleeps well." That's the way Electric Bitters affects the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weakness and general debility. Weak, puny children too are greatly strengthened by them. Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by R. C. Hardwick, druggist, 25c.

Livery Change

I have bought the livery business of Everts & Courtney, on North Main street, and would be glad to have my old friends and customers call on me. I am going to do a general livery business, keep none but the best help, board horses, furnish the very best rigs and guarantee satisfaction in every way. I am the oldest man in the business in the city and am not afraid to make the assertion that I will please all.

Read Carefully Our Plan!

THE KENTUCKIAN will send to the Jamestown Exposition the four most popular young women in Christian County. The Kentuckian will pay every cent of expense, including railroad fare; Pullman fare; meals on train; hotel bills; street car fare; admission to grounds and amusement concessions; side trips to points in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds.

The contest is open to any young lady making her home in Christian county. For each year's subscription to the Kentuckian at $2.00 the subscriber will be entitled to cast 40 votes.

Our contest began Nov.
15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

YOU choose the candidate—WE don't. The minute a vote is cast for a young woman she becomes a candidate and her name is placed upon the published list, together with the total vote cast for her up to the time the list is published.

When a subscription is received at this office the subscriber is first credited with the amount of this subscription and the number of votes his subscription represents is credited to the candidate named by him.

The vote will be COUNTED EVERY FRIDAY; at noon and each candidate will be credited with her new vote and her total vote to date and the result will be published in the next issue of the Kentuckian.
